Rejon Taylor: I was saying, I was saying, I aint, I'd say I could be mad cuz they didn't even prove their case. But I figure, I figure I aint even worried about it though. Cuz they didn't prove their case.

Tameka: No, they didn't

5:07-5:31

Rejon Taylor: I wasn't even mad because once it came back so quick I was like man there's some racist stuff going on cuz. At first I figured when we has having the jury, when we was picking the jury they was acting like, "Well, we can go by the law, we can do this and that like they weren't going to have a problem going by the law." So I figured we had an alright jury despite how they was looking

Tameka: Uh-huh, oh, yeah, yeah

Rejon Taylor: But when they came back I said I know there's some I said that's just how they came up with it, that aint even right.

Tameka: Yeah...

6:10-6:44

Rejon Taylor: Yeah, I was straight, I wasn't mad, I wasn't even worried about it.

Tameka: Oh, ok, ok, good, good then

Rejon Taylor: I understood what took place, that's why I wasn't really mad about it, even though I know they didn't prove their case I was just, I knew what it was about when they came back with that verdict and how it was so quick like that.

Tameka: Yeah.

Rejon Taylor: I seen them, them little, them little redneck looking folks on the jury to so I already figured.

Tameka: Them what?

Rejon Taylor: Them little redneck looking folks.

Tameka: Oh

Rejon Taylor: The reason why I didn't look at them that way right away is because I felt like they were saying they could go by the law.

Tameka: Yeah, yeah

Rejon Taylor: It was a different story when it was time
